A LADY AND CHILD BREAK THROUGH ICE.—On Saturday afternoon, about half-past 4 o'clock, a cry of distress was heard above the dam at Fairmount, when a rush was made to the spot from whence it proceeded. It was found that a young lady named Adelle Raband, residing in 3011 E. 11th street, below Oxford, had broken through the ice while in company with her nephew, Robert Raband, aged nine years. The young lady being an expert swimmer, and possessed of much self-possession, succeeded in keeping her head above water. The child was caught by her and held above water sufficiently long to keep it from strangling, and until rescued from drowning by a gentleman who came to their assistance. Mrs. Raband refused to leave the child, and soon after she was also extricated, but not until she had been in the water for a considerable length of time. They were then taken to a public house near by, and necessary aid administered to them. The heroic conduct of the lady in question was the cause of much commendation.

MEETING OF THE SCOTT LEGION.—On Saturday evening a meeting of the Scott Legion was held, at which the following-named gentlemen were put in nomination as officers for the ensuing year:—President, Colonel A. H. Reynolds; Vice-President, Colonel Casper M. Berry; Recording Secretary, J. R. Kelley; Corresponding Secretary, E. P. Morris; Treasurer, Alderman George Moore; Trustees, Captain John Spear, J. J. Canaday, and Colonel E. R. Bliss; Monument Committee, W. N. Schultz, E. H. Winslow, and W. J. Mackey. The election will take place at their next meeting. THE FIREMEN.—The Vigilant Fire Company have determined to make an excursion to Pittsburg, Chicago, and Cincinnati. The United States Engine Company have purchased a site opposite their old engine house, on Fourth street, for the purpose of erecting a new and more commodious house. The Columbia Engine Company, Twenty-second Ward, have purchased new equipments, and will parade on the 22d inst. This Company are making efforts to be located as a steam fire engine company. The Fellowship Steam Engine Company, of the Twenty-second Ward, have sold their hand engine and carriage to a company in Chambersburg.

GAS EXPLOSION.—An explosion of gas took place in the culvert on Callowhill street, between Twenty-first and Twenty-second streets, on Saturday evening, which was of sufficient force to cut the iron pipes in two places at both Twenty-first and Twenty-second streets, and shivered some of the glass in the windows of houses to shambles. The explosion given rise to it, that a new meter had been put in the basement of the house, No. 2110 Callowhill street, the service-pipe attached to which had a leak in it, and the gas escaped, found its way into the culvert, and was ignited by a flame from a lamp.

THE PROFESSIONALS IN NEW SCENES.—The cheerless dinnertime of not particular as to where they operate. On Thursday last an immense prayer meeting was held at the Tabernacle Baptist Church, in Chestnut street, near Eighteenth. During the course of the services a lady was relieved of her pocket-book by some adult performer. Fortunately, its contents were comparatively valueless, consisting of some memoranda, but on the other hand, a small sum of money was secured. Two of the light-fingered fraternity were arrested on the spot.

ANOTHER COLD MONDAY.—The cold snap which commenced on Friday increased in intensity yesterday. Its effect was quite apparent in the deserted thoroughfares and sily attended churches. At six o'clock in the morning the thermometer stood at twenty below zero, twelve degrees above zero, and at three in the afternoon it stood at twenty-five. During the evening the mercury fell below that point. Today we are having another "blue Monday." Why all the Mondays of late should be so unusually severe is a subject for the debating societies.

A SERIOUS ACCIDENT.—Casper Cooper, Secretary to the Chief of Police, met with a painful accident yesterday while in the discharge of his duty. While attempting to calm the excitement of an intoxicated individual he slipped and fell, spraining his knee so seriously that he was obliged to be taken home in a carriage. Mr. Cooper is a very efficient officer, and his numerous friends will regret to hear of the accident.

FIRE AND ACCIDENT.—The alarm of fire last evening, about half-past 10 o'clock, was caused by the slight burning of a shed in the rear of Jackson's machine shop, No. 1145 Sophia street. The flames were extinguished before any great damage was done. During the fire, two members of the Western Engine Company were run over at Twelfth and Callowhill streets by the Spring Garden Engine, and seriously injured.

The Meridian Sun Lodge, No. 168; Girard Mark Lodge, No. 168; and Philadelphia Lodge, No. 1, I. O. O. F., followed the remains to their last resting place.

THROWN FROM A CARRIAGE.—Last evening, about six o'clock, a pair of horses attached to a light carriage ran away from the corner of Twenty-first and Hamilton streets. After proceeding a short distance the vehicle was overturned, and the owner, a Mr. Richards, was thrown out and sustained severe injuries.

DROWNED.—An unknown white man attempted to walk on the ice across the Schuylkill on Saturday afternoon, and was precipitated into the water by the breaking of the ice. He was thought to be about thirty years old. The body was not recovered.

Confession of a Murderer.

THE STARKWEATHER CASE IN HARTFORD.

The Hartford (Conn.) Current of Thursday says Albert L. Starkweather has confessed the murder of his mother and his sister, for which crime he was convicted on Wednesday. The substance of the confession is as follows:—
"In the early part of the week preceding the murder, he said, came to Hartford, and executed a deed to him of the homestead. Previously (in 1882) she had delivered to him a deed of a lot containing three acres, though the deed had never been recorded. In giving him the deed of the homestead, she had required him to give in return a mortgage note for fifteen hundred dollars in favor of Ella, his sister. On the Saturday following, he went to Rockville, and secured the services of a lawyer there, had the mortgage note cancelled, and gave the deed to her of all the estate to which he held title. On his return home that evening he stopped at Mr. Campbell's house, and gave the deed to Emma. When he reached his own house he told his mother what he had done, and she, very naturally, assured him for doing what she pronounced to be a very foolish act, and expressed herself in strong terms. She finally told him, however, that if he was willing to take the deed of the homestead as previously recorded, and let the note of fifteen hundred dollars in favor of Ella stand as it was drawn, and would keep the deed in his own name and live on the premises, the arrangement she had made with him in regard to property would remain binding, and if Emma would marry him she could come there and live; but if he chose to treat the matter as he had—deciding away all he was worth—he should not have an "inch of the ground." The words quoted are exactly those used by her, as stated by Starkweather in his confession.

"He told her that he would do nothing of the kind—would not take back the deed he had given to Emma—and then accused her of interfering with his business and all Campbell's arrangements. Some further conversation of an excited character ensued, which resulted in his mother's going and getting the deed and note (which were in her possession) and tearing them up in his presence. This was followed by a quarrel, and he said, 'I would be revenged.' The destruction of the deed and note, it will be observed, rendered the deed he had given to Miss Campbell totally valueless. From that time, he said, he was determined to kill her, and the idea of killing mother did not leave him mind." He said he thought of it constantly—all night Saturday, and Sunday, and Sunday night, and all of the following day, and the more I thought of it the madder I grew," were the words he used.

"Monday night he made up his mind to do the deed, as a favorable opportunity was presented by the absence of the hired man and boy. His mother and sister were asleep, and he waited until they were frequently awakened to do, toward morning, about 3 o'clock, the house became quiet, and he took the axe from the woodshed and the knife from a drawer, and proceeded to the bedroom where his mother and sister lay. On reaching there he immediately struck her blows upon the head with an axe, and in so doing started his sister Ella, who was lying in the back part of the bed, and she sprang up and jumped towards him. He did not expect to kill her, but as she did, he struck her, and she fell, and he took the knife from his pocket and cut her throat, and she died. He then went to the head of the bed, and he was led to knock her in the head in order to put her out of the way, that she might not be a witness to his crime against him. To make certain work, he used his axe and knife, and he struck her on the head, and he knocked her head against the wall, and made a bruise on her forehead, and one on the side of his face, and then took his knife from his pocket and cut her throat, and she died. He then went to the head of the bed, and he was led to knock her in the head in order to put her out of the way, that she might not be a witness to his crime against him.
